Fund Manager's Report

Market Review

The fund's NAV decreased by 5.4% in Dec, while the benchmark MSCI Zhonghua Index declined by 4.5% in HKD base in the same month, which underperformed the benchmark by 0.9 percent points in this Dec. To sum up, the fund led the benchmark index by 3.9 percent points in 2018. Due to mounting market risk and rising risk aversion, global stock market tumbled in Dec, with S&P 500 Index, Hang Seng Index and Shanghai Shenzhen CSI 300 decreased by 9.1%, 2.5% and 3.9% respectively in this Dec. Majority of industries in MSCI Zhonghua Index retreated in Dec, only Utilities posted positive return. Utilities, Real Estate, Consumer Staples, Communication Services and Financials outperformed, while Health Care, Energy, Consumer Discretionary and Information Technology tumbled and underperformed mainly due to the China medicine GPO Policy, the rapid fall of oil price and rising risk aversion.

Market Outlook

On the negative side, Dec exports and imports of Mainland China declined YoY and missed expectations, and recent NBS manufacturing PMI also dropped below 50, showing that both external and domestic demand slowed further. On the positive side, a moderately loose monetary policy and proactive fiscal policy of Chinese government would be helpful to stabilize the economy, and the trade tensions between China and US get eased, investor confidence is gradually recovering. We expect the Hong Kong market to remain volatile. We will maintain main position on quality stocks, increase holdings of high yield stocks and focus more on investment opportunities in Communication Services, Consumer Staples, China Real Estate, and China Financials sectors.
