Market Outlook

US fiscal and monetary policies are expected to remain stable after the US election, the reduced market uncertainties and rising risk appetite would drive market to rebound. In addition, the vaccination of COVID-19 vaccines is also conducive to overseas epidemic control and future global economic recovery.

We are cautiously optimistic about the market outlook in medium term and expect HK stock market to rebound amidst volatilities. We will continue to adjust and optimize the portfolio structure and adhere to value investment. We will maintain our positions in quality stocks and growth stocks. In short to medium term, we will focus on investment opportunities in the Information Technology, Consumer, Health Care, Cyclical and Insurance, and pay attention to the trading opportunities in other sectors.
