Fund Manager's Report
Market Review

The fund's NAV increased by 3.03% in June and retreated by 7.15% year to date. Although overseas inflation remains high with rising recession concerns, Hong Kong stocks rebounded along with Mainland China stocks with the control of China's COVID-19 outbreak and policy easing stimulus. In June, emerging markets outperformed developed markets. In Hong Kong dollars, Hang Seng Index and CSI 300 gained by 2.08% and 9.17% while S&P 500 retreated by 8.39% in the month. As to sectors in Hang Seng Index, most sectors obtained positive return, while Industrials, Materials and Energy sectors performed the worst with negative return.

Market Outlook

As the epidemic were under control and logistics and travel unblocked, most economic data started to rebound from June. Fiscal support for consumption and accommodative monetary policy will likely support a continuous pick-up on economic activity in China. Thus, Market sentiment gradually recovers. However, uncertainty of external environment is still disruptive to the market. We will adjust portfolio structure accordingly and appropriately balance sector allocation. We will keep balanced allocation between growth stocks and value stocks. We focus on Consumption Internet leaders with attractive valuation and stable fundamentals and sectors which will benefit from stabilizing growth policies.
