Market Outlook

After the Fed announced its unlimited quantitative easing policy, the tight liquidity situation and the panic level in overseas financial markets have been significantly alleviated. Besides, the outbreak of the coronavirus in China has been basically under controlled. New cases are gradually fading out and production has resumed in an orderly manner. The Chinese government quickly implemented a series of unconventional countermeasures to control the epidemic and achieved obvious results. However, the coronavirus continues to spread in other countries, overseas markets are expected to continue to fluctuate in the short term. Hong Kong as an important offshore market to China, Hong Kong market remains being affected and stayed volatile. We believe that the outbreak of the coronavirus will not change the long-term growth trend of China's economy. After a short term impact, the China's economy will return to the growth track. We will continue to adjust and optimize the fund's structure and adhere to value investment. We will maintain our positions in quality stocks and high-yield plays. We will focus on investment opportunities in Banks, Consumer Staples, Internet and Education sectors, and pay attention to the trading opportunities in other sectors.
